AEW Dynamite Results|June 15, 2022

Chris Jericho def. Ortiz

William Regal appeared legally thrilled at the possibility of Jericho going bald as he was giddy while going over Jericho needing to use a wig while on trip. He was not alone as these fans bit difficult on the very first nearfall for Ortiz.

Fuego Del Sol was the last individual anyone anticipated to have something to do with this surface. Having stated that, del Sol and Jericho will be funny gold if they're offered the possibility to work together— nevermind, Fuego del Sol ended up being Sammy Guevara.

Like a real babyface, Ortiz cut his own hair. Regard.

Wardlow def. 20 Security Guards

The guidelines were not articulately described for this match, which obviously was a hybrid fight royal match where security might be gotten rid of, pinned or sent.

Each time the guard were removed, they were recognized by Dash DASH a as "complainants" being gotten rid of.

The crowd went peaceful for long stretches of this hybrid match as maybe they were puzzled.

Dan Lambert advised Tyron Woodley and Matt Hughes to assault Wardlow, however the huge guy displayed his cerebral side by outmaneuvering the St. Louis locals by informing them not to take guidelines from "some abundant asshole in a skybox."

Will Ospreay def. Dax Harwood

Fans were really lukewarm for Will Ospreay's entryway after Dax Harwood got a big pop, however then they entered into Pavlovian chants of "let's go Harwood/let's go Ospreay."

Poor Excalibur needed to discuss all the acronyms within the male hardcore battling zeitgeist such as NJPW and IWGP.

Dax Harwood is such a babyface, he even went to the leading ropes to provide a flying headbutt. Comparable to the last time an FTR member attempted a high-risk maneuver, it backfired.

The pop was underwhelming, however the applause was long and well-deserved for Will Ospreay's Dynamite launching. They went dead quiet for a lot of NJPW gaijins they didn't acknowledge, then blew up for Orange Cassidy, whose jeans is even darker now.

Moxley and Tanahashi Face to Face

Jon Moxley did a fantastic task bring this sector, as you understood he would. Fans enjoyed this sector, even shouting "Tanahashi."

Before he might speak, Hiroshi Tanahashi was bailed out by a surprise look from Chris Jericho. Tanahashi got a loud pop for informing Jericho to "stop talking!"

Chris Jericho needed to present 2 brand-new members of the Jericho Appreciation Society (Sammy and Tay), tell near-coitus in between Sammy and Tay, describe what a Suzuki Gun was and promote a six-man tag group match all in one discount. It was extremely TNA-like, however the he pulled it off since he's a GOAT.

Miro def. Ethan Page

Excalibur continued to discuss complicated NJPW info to the audience concerning the All-Atlantic competition, and all of it reviewed my head.

These fans were quite into Miro. They didn't respond much to Ethan Page's entryway, however that's due to the fact that they hardly ever hear Page's songs music.

Page hilariously put Miro's hands together to make it appear as if he were hoping. Miro got the big win, however not prior to incredibly kicking Lambert off the mat.

Miro is the only guy in this competition who can put the All-Atlantic Championship on the level of a world title. Merely by ending up being God's brand-new preferred champ.

Toni Storm def. Britt Baker

Dasha Fuentes mistook throughout Britt Baker's entryway when she practically stated "Brittsburgh" rather of Pittsburgh.

Toni Storm's style music is so underrated.

A great deal of individuals have actually been bitching about how stiff Toni Storm is with her running hip attack. Britt Baker and Toni Storm remarkably utilized that to their benefit by making it appear like Britt was legitimate hurt. A great deal of "I Told You that Hip Attack threatened!" tweets were erased in drafts.

I was persuaded this match was created to get Britt Baker's heat back, however to my surprise, Toni Storm beat Baker once again.

Hangman Adam Page Speaks

Kazuchika Okada losing the IWGP Championship is yet another monkey wrench tossed into a currently complicated Forbidden Door program.

Jay White was yet another complete stranger with a belt who crashed an AEW promotion. He assaulted Hangman Adam Page and pleasantly awaited a response.

White declared that Adam Cole nor Hangman Adam Page were getting a world title chance at Forbidden Door.

The Young Bucks def. Jurassic Express

Crazy as it sounds, this ladder match may have been made much better without the Hardys.

The opening series was a furious chain of areas that saw Nick Jackson fly onto the ladder just for Jungle Boy to do a hurricanrana right away after.

There were 3 table areas back-to-back-to-back that need to be seen to be thought.

After the Young Bucks won, Christian got all sort of television time, he started to assist Jungle Boy out of the ring and after that naturally switched on him in front of Jungle Boy's household.
