

PODCAST: What's Next for EFBs in Airline Operations with Collins Aerospace

What's Next for EFBs in Airline Operations with Collins Aerospace

Episode

80

6/2/22

CONNECTED AVIATION INTELLIGENCE PODCAST
STAY CONNECTED, STAY INFORMED.
Expert Insights into Aircraft Connectivity
LISTEN NOW

Jon Merritt, VSL, Flight Deck and EFB Applications, Collins Aerospace, is the visitor on this episode.

Jon Merritt, VSL, Flight Deck and EFB Applications, Collins Aerospace, is the visitor on this episode.

On this episode of the Connected Aviation Intelligence Podcast, Jon Merritt, VSL Flight Deck and Electronic Flight Bag (EFB) Applications, Collins Aerospace, signs up with to discuss how using EFBs are developing for airline company pilots.

On June 1, Collins introduced its brand-new FlightHub Electronic Flight Folder with access to brand-new fuel cost savings application. Merritt, who is the previous director of flight operations innovation for United Airlines, talks about the value of developing a technique when it concerns the adoption and operation of brand-new EFB apps.

Have recommendations or subjects we should concentrate on in the next episode? Email the host, Woodrow Bellamy, at wbellamy@accessintel.com, or drop him a line on Twitter @WbellamyIIIAC. Examine out the program for the 2022 Connected Aviation Intelligence Summit simply published to our occasion site!

Listen to this episode listed below, or examine it out on iTunes or Google Play. If you like the program, subscribe on your preferred podcast app to get brand-new episodes as quickly as they're launched.

*This episode is sponsored by Collins Aerospace

Source: PODCAST: What's Next for EFBs in Airline Operations with Collins Aerospace