

Three-quarters of young individuals would think about an apprenticeship

Ahead of National Apprenticeship Week, BAE Systems has actually discovered that young individuals have a strong choice towards their regional neighborhood when it comes to looking for their future profession, with the huge bulk (86%) of 16-24 year olds surveyed stating they desire to safe a task close to where they live.

As well as a strong desire to stay regional, young individuals are likewise believing about what profession course is finest matched to them. Many think that apprenticeships deal the finest alternative; almost 3 quarters (73%) state they would think about an apprenticeship, an boost of 7% when compared to the previous year.

The business, which invests considerably in the advancement of young individuals through its 50 plus apprenticeship programs, is recruiting more than 900 apprentices throughout the UK. There are chances offered in Scotland, Wales, the North and South of England, with lotsof of these functions in some of the UK's most financially challenged areas.

BAE Systems is recruiting more than 900 apprentices throughout the UK. Image courtesy of BAE Systems

METRO ROD

Don't let the drains stop your production line.

CONTACT US

â€

Renewed optimism

Despite the pandemic, the research study discovered that more than two-thirds (71%) of young individuals are positive about their future profession potential customers, with more than half (53%) of those sensation positive that they will safe and secure a task they discover fascinating and more than a 3rd (35%) thinking there are now more task chances offered to them in the existing task market.

Reflecting on the past 2 years, almost two-thirds (63%) of young individuals now location more value on their profession and are inspired to work for a business which uses long-lasting task chances (36%) and the possibility to continue their knowing and advancement (36%).

Making a distinction

Making a favorable contribution to society likewise rates extremely, with the bulk of young individuals (82%) desiring to work for an organisation which has a clear function, with more than a quarter (26%) looking to pursue a profession that makes a distinction in the world.

When asked about the sectors they think make the most favorable contribution to society, healthcare (55%), education (51%) and science (37%) scored extremely, while one in 5 (21%) likewise worth the efforts of the defence market in supporting the UK armed forces.

Richard Hamer, Education and Skills Director at BAE Systems, stated: "It's motivating that so numerous young individuals are thinking about apprenticeships. By offering chances for young individuals in areas throughout the nation to gain certifications while they work, apprenticeships can play a essential function in supporting social movement and the Government's Levelling Up program.

"Our programs gear up young individuals with the abilities and understanding needed to set them up for a effective and gratifying profession with the chance to do essential work, providing programs and devices which will aid to secure the UK for years to come.”

Tej Naidoo, a 3rd year Technical Apprentice at BAE Systems’ Electronic Systems organization, stated: “When I left school I understood I desired to stay close to house and hit the ground running in my profession, so an apprenticeship with the Company was an chance I couldn’t pass up.

“I delightin getting hands-on, technical experience and my apprenticeship provides me this, as well as the chance to use the abilities I discover straight away. I would absolutely desire others to thinkabout taking an apprenticeship path; there’s no muchbetter method to establish your abilities and launch your profession.”

BAE Systems is set to hire practically 1,700 apprentices and finishes throughout the UK this year. The production of more than 900 apprentice and 750 graduate and undergraduate functions is the biggest consumption of early professions functions the Company hasactually used in a single year.

Source: Three-quarters of young individuals would thinkabout an apprenticeship.